Medical Society, After Annual Meeting, Invited Dr. John Champlin to Inspect Finely Equipped Sanitarium-Death of John A. Moore-James blake Loses Left

At the conclusion of the banquet Dr.

John Champlin sprung a surprise on his brother physicians and invited them to inspect the hospital he had erected. The building is a two and a half story structure in a sightly location. All the interior woodwork is painted white with double coats of white enamel and the sanitarium is as white enamel and the sanitarium is as near perfection as possible.

On the first floor is a large reception hall, a reception parlor, a private room, dining room and kitchen. The floors are double deadened and all the rooms are heated by steam and lighted by electricity, and the door trimmings are of oxidized brass, the best of workmanship predominating throughout the building.

On the second floor is a pink room, a light pink room, a light yellow room and an operating room. In each of the rooms is a telephone, so arranged that patients in bed can have communication either by local or long distance service direct. Every room is light, as there are at least two windows in each, and the building is so located that every room is shoolutely dust are of. The floor is of waternoof.

The operating room is absolutely dust proof. The floor is of waterproof cement and the side walls and ceiling are heavily enameled in white. All the corners in the walls are rounded and rounded where connection is made with the floor. In this room, in addition to the windows, there is a skylight of prism glass, so that there is ample light for day operation. At night this room is lighted by a chandeller of four electric lights, with holophone globes, arranged to best advantage over the operating table. holophone globes, arranged to best advantage over the operating table. There is also a telephone call in this room, so that an operating surgeon could communicate or be communicated with and not be required to leave the room. In addition there is provision for furnishing electricity if required in the treatment. The rooms on the first floor are nine feet and six inches in height and on the second floor eight feet and six inches. Later two rooms will be located on the third floor.

Dr. Champlin believes that the open-ng of this private hospital will event-nally lead up to a public hospital. This w institution will prove of great ad-intage and be appreciated by the copile and physicians. In Providence present there are eight from Westin private rooms, not wards, in hospitals of that city, and because here is no facility for proper treat-nent in their home town.

Dr. Champlin has named the institu-ion the Westerly Sanitarium, and assed it at a nominal rental to Mrs.

Ladora Keator, an experienced nurse, who has been in Mrs. Olsten's hospital in New York. She will have full charge of the sanitarium, except the operating room, over which Dr. Chamoperating room, over which Dr. Champilin retains supervision.

Any patient who desires can go to the institution and it is open to any member of the Westerly Medical society for the treatment of patients, and any reputable surgeon from elsewhere is free to treat patients there. While Dr. Champilin furnishes the building, the guneral furnishing of the sanitarium is in charge of Mrs. Keator, and alternative people of Westerly have expresssthurban home for sale.

Opinion of Students at Wesleyan Uni-

A meeting of Wesleyan college was held in Memorial chapel last week to discuss some of the problems confronting the students. The honor system was thoroughly gone over and read in detail. Particular stress was laid on observing this system in every detail in the coming examinations. Difficulty has been experienced in the past in getting the students to report any violations they may see, they having an idea that to report a fellow student in such a manner was rather sneaky. Mr. Vanderbilt, president of the senior class, pointed out that the success of the system depended on each student telling of any violation be might come across. He cautioned the students to be careful and be perfectly sure before any report was made, as there had been a case lately of a student being reported who had later been proved innocent. The question of hazing by the sophomore societies was discussed, and it was decided not to abolish the custom, but to limit the extent of such hazing by compelling each society to have an adviser from the senior class.

Nature's Gift from the Sunny South

Physicians today are recommending Cottolene for consumptives, dyspeptics, and others in a "rundown" condition. Never heard of them recommending lard for such a purpose, did you? Cottolene is a product of Nature, clean in source, making and manner of marketing. It makes food which the most delicate stomach can digest.

Cottolene is far superior to lard or cooking butter for all frying and shortening purposes. Made only by THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY, Boston, New Orleans, New York.
